Discuss Ways to Reduce Election Costs and Promote Efficiency

Interest Is Unflagging in Child Labor, World Court and Disarmament

St. Louis, Mo.—Delegates from virtually every congressional district in the United States in attendance at the annual convention of the National League of Women Voters report a significant increase in the interest taken by clubs and study groups on the detail of public questions.

Although the League has been advocating many things like the child labor amendment and the world court, there is a noticeable interest in economic questions. This arises particularly out of the discussion of efficiency in government which is one of the main topics of the program.

STUDY TAXATION

Taxation is being studied not alone as a problem of the federal government but as an essential of state and municipal efficiency. Methods of assessing and collecting county taxes have occupied here Saturday a large part of the debate.

In line with the idea of promoting efficiency, the delegates have been talking over the proposal to work for the selection of a woman on every election board, methods of registering qualified voters and preventing fraudulent voting. But even in this broad theme consideration is given to the interest in child labor.

To the Washington correspondent who comes here expecting to listen to the usual abstract arguments of civic associations there is a pleasant surprise in the way the women have tackled the subject of federal aid to the states. The principal of the federal government should be in assisting the states with funds in argued concretely here with specific pieces of legislation in mind. There is no question but that the underlying sentiment of this convention favors cooperation between the states and the federal government for the common welfare.

INTERESTED IN CHILD LABOR

Incidentally there is no sign that the League members have allowed the interest in the child labor amendment to diminish. They gave it a prominent place on the program this time with the title "Child Labor—A Living Issue". The League is endeavoring to take the states at their word in improving state laws relating to child labor for it is realized that the defeat of the federal amendment was largely due to the contention that the states would legislate as they had in many instances.

The convention lasts several days during which time the delegates have prepared to discuss the progress of international cooperation toward peace, the responsibilities of women in municipal government, state immigration, the wisdom of further amendment of the federal constitution, and the outstanding phases of economic problems involving a survey of agricultural business, and labor conditions.

Find Spanish Fliers Still Alive In African Desert

Cairo, Egypt.—(AP)—Both Captain Estevez leader of the Spanish Manila fliers, and his mechanic, Calvo, have been found. Messages received here say they are in fairly good condition despite their wanderings in the desert since last Sunday, when their airplane was forced down about 100 miles from Amman, Palestine.

Capt Estevez was found by flying officer Coghill of the British air forces, 40 miles from his abandoned machine. His feet were blistered, but otherwise his condition was said to be fair. He was taken by airplane to the nearest medical station.

Mechanic Calvo was found 25 miles further away from the plane. If his condition permits, he will be taken by airplane for medical treatment.

The British are at a loss to explain how the airmen subsisted during the long period between their forced landing and their rescue.

CHECK FOREST, PRAIRIE FIRES IN NORTHWEST

Over Half Million Dollars Damage Done by Blaze That Kills Three

Chicago (AP)—The first crop of spring forest and prairie fires in three widely separated areas of the country generally was under control Saturday, although continuing high winds in some districts carried threats of fanning the flames anew.

Fires which swept large forest areas near Plymouth, Mass., have been checked and most of the prairie and grass fires in Minnesota and the Dakotas have been extinguished, but rangers still were fighting flames in the Kootenai national forest in western Montana and Idaho. Three lives were lost in Minnesota and North Dakota, with the loss in that territory estimated between half a million and million dollars. Eleven farm buildings were burned in Massachusetts.

Reports that the Massachusetts fires were of incendiary origin were under investigation Saturday by state officials. Hundreds of forestry men and firemen had been engaged in a two day battle on a front which extended from Little South Pond in the direction of Buzzard's bay and Wareham before the fires were checked. Five separated fires started within a small radius on the Plymouth-Middleboro turnpike.

Although many fires still were smoldering in the central northwest it was believed that they offered no further menace. Considerable livestock, poultry, farm machinery and forest trunks of lumber were destroyed in Minnesota and the Dakotas. Several rural school houses also were burned.

Twenty-five men are fighting flames on a 15 acre tract in the Y. A. K. river country of Montana, and additional rangers have been dispatched from Missoula, Montana, to the Kootenai forest, where fires are reported spreading. A logging camp near Port Angeles Washington was menaced by flames.

BELOIT SENIORS LEARN OLD RULE STILL HOLDS

Beloit—For 30 years the Beloit college senior class has sent a petition to the faculty and president, politely requesting that all members of the class be exempt from examinations.

For the same number of years the faculty and president have as politely returned the petition to the class, and informed the members that the request would have to be denied.

The tradition was upheld Thursday when the annual petition was returned by the faculty marked "No."

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS NOMINATE FOUR NEW OFFICERS

St. Louis, Mo.—(AP)—Miss Belle Sherwin of Cleveland, Ohio, Saturday was nominated for reelection as president of the national league of women voters in convention here. The reorganization of the nominating committee is considered equivalent to election.

Other officers nominated are Mrs. James Morrison of Chicago, first vice president, Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith, Farmington, Conn., secretary, Miss Katherine Ludington, Lyme, Conn., treasurer.

All officers are to be elected for two year terms in accordance with an amendment passed providing for biennial instead of annual conventions.

Efficiency in government was the subject of Saturday's general discussion.

SNOW CONTINUES IN MIDDLEWEST

Spring Seems Reluctant to Replace Winter, Prophecy Rain for Week

Chicago—Snow came back to the middle west Saturday and Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois all reported local snow storms. Dubuque, Ia., Austin and Alberta, La., Minn., and several central Illinois cities reported snow storms and a fall of from a half inch to five inches of snow. It was also snowing in the St. Lawrence Valley, near Montreal.

Many localities reported rainfall, and the weather bureau forecasts precipitation over much of the central and northwest in the next 36 hours.

Dixon, Ill., held the snowfall record Saturday with five inches, the heaviest late season snow ever reported in Illinois.

Minnesota farmers welcomed the state, which remedied a scarcity of moisture.

The entire midwest found temperatures low Saturday with cloudy weather likely to continue over the weekend.

Minneapolis (AP)—A drizzling rain which at any time may turn into snow was predicted for Wisconsin Saturday and Sunday. Should the return engagement of winter materialize the weather man promised that it would not be for long.

Outlook for week beginning Monday for the region of Great Lakes: Fair Monday and probably Tuesday followed by periods of showers; cold Monday, rising temperature Tuesday and probably Wednesday, cooler near end.

KELLOGG WOULD SELL TACNA TO END QUARREL

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—Secretary Kellogg as mediator in the Tacna-Arica dispute has made alternative suggestions to Chile and Peru for the neutralization of the two provinces or for their transfer to a south American state, as a party to the negotiations upon equitable compensation.

The secretary's proposals were announced in a statement issued at the state department which said that "as neither party is willing to surrender the territory in question to the other, and as the proposal for a division of the territory between them has been rejected, the remaining opportunity for a solution of the long standing controversy would appear to be found in one of the suggestions above made or in modification thereof of its such deemed advisable."

3 WISCONSIN PROFS RESIGN IN FORTNIGHT

Professor Hall Says His Decision Was Influenced by Regents' Act

Madison (AP)—Action of the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin in barring acceptance of gifts from incorporated educational foundations "influenced considerably," the acceptance by Arnold B. Hall, professor of political science, of the Presidency of the University of Oregon.

Prof. Hall who has been at Wisconsin since 1910, will assume his new duties Sept. 1.

"The action of the regents in declining to accept gifts from educational foundations did affect me considerably in my decision to leave Wisconsin," declared Professor Hall.

Prof. Hall is the third professor to resign within a month giving the regents' action as one of the reasons prompting their resignation. Prof. V. A. C. Hennon resigned as head of the school of education, to accept an offer by Yale university. Prof. Hennon stated arrangements practically completed to obtain financial assistance from foundations had been halted by the regents' action.

Arthur Sperry Pearce, professor of zoology of the University of Wisconsin now on a leave of absence, has resigned to accept an offer made by Duke University of Durham, N. C.

Prof. Pearce, the third professor to sever connections with the university within a fortnight, now is studying at the London School of Tropical Medicine on a year's leave of absence.

It was learned Prof. Pearce will become graduate professor of zoology at Duke university when he completes his research work abroad Feb. 1, 1927. Prof. Pearce came to Wisconsin in 1912.

CENSURES REGENTS' ACT

Stating he had been able to secure financial assistance from one of the foundations for a five year period to finance research work of some of the younger men in the university, Prof. Hall declared no such provision had been made for the older men.

A few of us at the University of Wisconsin," he explained "were attracted to the field work and had been expecting to get the necessary funds from the educational foundations that are encouraging research."

"The action of the board of regents of course made such plans impossible. Consequently the offer of the University of Oregon with its very successful organization and its large possibilities for development could not be resisted."

Expressing regret at leaving Madison, Prof. Hall said "it is to be sincerely hoped that those responsible for the policy of rejecting private funds will be able to carry out their pledge of seeing that the research needs of the university are adequately met from state appropriations."

Shy Hairy Lady Dies, Asks That Remains Be Burned

New York (AP)—The shyness which Krow, ultra-feminine bearded lady of the sedeshows, overcame for 30 years, to turn misfortune into property, holds away with her death.

Krow, known in the circus as the "malignant link" died Friday of influenza, leaving instructions that her hairy body be cremated so her peculiarities could no longer be exhibited.

"Despite her appearance, she was thoroughly feminine, and very shy and gentle and kind, too," said the circus speller who knew her best.

The thick hair on Krow's arms grew upward, monkey like, she had no carilage in her nose, there was pouches in her cheeks and her fingers would bend backward as far as forward. But she spoke four languages, and the circus folk told of cultured strangers being surprised at her familiarity with literature.

Krow leaves behind her a mysterious family in Germany. She corresponded with her "family" but nothing of it is known here. Circus tradition credits her with more than the 49 years she gave as her age, and with 40 years instead of 30 of circus wandering. The Starnes villagers told Professor Farini that Krow's mother was frightened by a haroon shortly before Krow was born. Professor Farini took her to Berlin and exhibited and educated her there before she came to America.

URGE PROEB OF PASSAIC STRIKE

Coolidge Says Investigation and Remedy is Not a Federal Matter

Washington (AP)—Passaic textile strike conditions are becoming such that a senate investigation should be authorized, Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, told the senate Friday in urging the manufacturers committee to report the LaFollette resolution calling for an inquiry, without delay.

Senator Borah said he had "reliable information that the employers no longer desire an investigation at the white house it was stated that President Coolidge believes if there have been violations of federal laws at Passaic attention of the United States Attorney for New Jersey should be called to them. If state laws have violated the remedy, he feels, rests with state authorities."

Washington (AP)—The chamber of commerce has taken up the right to prevent passage of the rider to the river and harbors bill at Washington which would permit further diversion of lake water to the Illinois river.

Letters were sent to all Great Lakes cities asking them to enlist additional forces in the fight to keep lake levels up and freight rates down. The letter declared "powerful interests are making a strenuous effort to secure passage of the rider." The letter added that the move to secure water to make the Illinois river navigable, "is a sinister pretext that will be argued in the future to justify Chicago's water diversion."

The letter urged cities to protest to their congressmen against passage of the rider.

SAYS LAW HAS NOT IMPROVED DRY CONDITION

Attorney General W. E. Roney of Ontario Denies Testimony of wets

LAY WITNESSES CALLED

Discuss Asking for the Resignation of Andrews and Buckner

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The senate prohibition investigators were told Saturday that legalization of beer has not solved the temperance question in Canada.

Devoting an entire session to the testimony of a former attorney general of Ontario, W. L. Roney, the investigating committee was advised that the bootlegger still abounds in the Canadian provinces where bone dry prohibition was given way to sale of light alcoholic drinks under government control. The witness was called by the anti-saloon league and he contradicted directly some of the statements made before the committee earlier in the week by Canadians put on the stand by the wets.

For the second time since the inquiry began two weeks ago the committee called an afternoon session in order to hear other witnesses summoned by dry leaders. For the most part, these witnesses were called to testify regarding conditions in this country since the dry law was passed.

With the testimony at the morning hearing continued to conditions in Canada, there was no mention of one of the principal storm centers of the controversy, Brig. General Andrews. Late in the day, however the prohibition chief was to become the subject of a discussion by the legislative committee of the anti-saloon league, some of whose members want to ask for his resignation. His testimony before the senate committee several days ago in which he conceded that government restricted sale on non-interfering beer might help enforcement will be examined carefully by the anti-saloon league officials before they announced their decision.

CALL LAY WITNESSES

The drys drew up a battery of lay witnesses Saturday to carry forward the bombardment against modification, measures at the senate prohibition hearing. Elsewhere meanwhile, the legislative committee of the anti-saloon league was called in council to consider action on the testimony of Assistant Secretary Andrews and U. S. Attorney Buckner of New York.

The big guns of the dry battery of lay witnesses included W. E. Roney, former Attorney General, Canada who was placed in position to combat the testimony of other Canadians put on the stand by the wets. Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale and A. A. Stacey, football coach of Chicago University.

The question before the anti-saloon league centered on prohibition to demand removal from office of General Andrews the grand marshal of federal enforcement agencies and District Attorney Buckner. The testimony of the latter who has advocated more complete enforcement of the Volstead act or its modification, proved especially displeasing to prohibitionists and the opinion expressed by General Andrews in reply to a hypothetical question that restricted manufacture and sale of non-interfering beer under government control might aid enforcement has brought down upon him a barrage of denunciation from some ardent drys.

The drys were taken to task Saturday by Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale for abandoning their educational policy for a "mere law observance program."

"It is my firm conviction," Prof. Fisher said, "that a great tactical blunder has been made virtually by the drys in dropping their education program and turning to a mere law observance program."

200 USED CARS ON DISPLAY AT CITY AUTO SALE

Large Crowd Attends First Sale of Local Dealers at Fair Grounds

Over 200 used cars of practically every standard make were on display at the car sale held Saturday at the stock fair grounds. Ten Appleton automobile dealers cooperated in the sale.

This was the first attempt of Appleton dealers to conduct organized sale and that the buyers realized the advantage of having a large number of automobiles to select from was indicated by the large crowd at the fair grounds all day. Several dealers estimated the number of visitors at more than 2,500.

So many farmers drove in from the country looking for trucks and autos that parking space within two blocks of the fair grounds was at premium. A large number of trucks as well as passenger cars were offered for sale. It was said that farmers particularly were active truck purchasers.

Prices on the cars ranged from $50 to $2,000, with the average selling price between $500 and $600.

The success of the sale led one of the dealers to indicate that another sale might be held at the same place in the near future.

CHINESE RICKSHAW BEING DISPLACED BY MOTOR CARS

The rickshaw, that frail two-wheeled vehicle operated by man power, which has been the Chinese method of local transportation, for centuries, is passing before the most modern type of motor car and truck.

The roads of China have little to commend them for use of rubber tired conveyances, but many of the native population, as well as foreign residents, prefer this never met with transportation which enables them to eliminate time in a country where time is reckoned by dynasties or centuries.

Even in the newer military regime of China, which is now battling against the incursion of Soviet doctrine, the motor truck has become an important link in the operations.

The big factor in bringing about this condition is the use of Dodge Brothers Motor Cars and Graham Brothers Trucks, which are now in general use in the provinces of Hankow and Honan.

Recently a shipment of thirty Dodge Brothers chassis was made to Gen. Wu Pei Fu, commanding the Chinese army at Tientsin, in the Province of Chihli. Gen. Wu is using this fleet for transporting troops and for road building.

Two other large shipments of these units were received by the L. E. Gale Company, Dodge Brothers Dealers at Hankow. These shipments were disbursed to other points in the provinces of Hankow and Honan for road building and for transportation needs.

The shipments comprised two trawls, one load containing 25 Graham Brothers Trucks destined for Kaileng, Honan, and another train load, consisting mainly of Dodge Brothers chassis, was for distribution from the L. E. Gale Company's headquarters at Hankow.

The huge shipment was made across the Pacific Ocean to Shanghai. Here the heavy export boxes were transferred to lighters for the trip up the Yangtze River a distance of 600 or 700 miles inland. The lighters used for this purpose are small flat boats of native design, capable of holding three or four of these huge boxes. Four days is required to make the inland journey.

On arrival at Hankow more difficulties were encountered. Lack of modern equipment for unloading such bulky freight was confronted. But there were endless myriads of them, ready on the bank eager to assist in the work.

The boxes were removed from the deck of the lighter by means of a long steel cable and a windlass. Back from the river bank a long, broad, concrete wall for flood protection. This wall is about twelve feet high. Another task confronted Mr. Gale and his associates in getting the heavy boxes up to dry ground. The boxes were rolled to a pair of skids which had been placed on the steps of a driveway leading to the top of the wall. A "yoke" made of bamboo was stretched around the box to be raised. To this "yoke" are attached a number of circular rings made of leather or some heavy cloth. These slings are thrown over the right shoulder of each man at work and by continual forcing they manage to take the heavy freight up the required distance. Usually about thirty coolies are employed at this task.

The coolies go about their work with a manner which betrays their stolid nature. A leader is chosen and he directs the work. As the men take hold of their box the leader begins a "song" which is similar to the "heave ho" chant of the American truck drivers.

CITY AWARDS CONTRACT FOR WATER MAIN PIPES

A contract to furnish 1,000 feet of 4-inch cast iron pipe for water mains was awarded the National Cast Iron Pipe Co., of Birmingham, Ala., by the water commission at a meeting Friday afternoon. The first shipment is expected in about two weeks, according to Fred R. Morris, secretary of the commission.

The commission decided to advertise for bids for ten hydrants. The bids will be opened May 1. A check for $14,522.94, representing the city equity in the waterplant was drawn in favor of Appleton. This represents 5 per cent of the city's investment in the plant, which is $550,000. The dividend is paid twice annually. Regular bills and payroll were allowed and other routine business transacted.

Here Are Two Of The Stars In Masked Players Contest

MOTION picture fans and theatrical patrons get busy. The Appleton Post-Crescent-Elite theater Masked Players contest begins Saturday afternoon. The first group of masked Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer screen stars have taken their place on the program at the Elite theater. They will appear every day until next Saturday as a part of the regular bill and will be followed by another group. The first group includes eight players and the second will have 13.

Guess them and win a big prize!

In the Post-Crescent which is conducting the contest in cooperation with the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, a coupon will appear daily—the official entry blank for the contest. Cut it out, then go to the theater, see the masked players, and fill in your guesses as to their names—and give appropriate slogans to each. See if your memory won't pay you dividends!

And remember—the slogan is even more important than the guess—as the best slogans win the biggest prizes. See if you can think up a description that fits the players as well as "America's Sweetheart" fits Mary Pickford.

The first group of players, appearing all this week at the Elite theater, includes some very noted ones. Number One is a man, whose last name suggests sunlight—and he is famous as a portrait of country boy roles.

Number Two is the girl in "Sun-Up," who looks like Gloria Swanson and whose initials are P. S.

Number Three is the man of a thousand faces: who has played hunchbacks, cripples, aged women—and whose real face, without make-up has never been seen by the public.

Number Four is the star of "The Midshipman" and plays the title role in "Ben Hur." The first two letters of his last name spell a negative answer.

Number Five is star of "The Big Parade" and danced in "The Merry Widow" with Mae Murray; also opposite Lillian Gish in "La Boheme."

Number six is the actress who appeared in "The Lady of the Night," "A Slave of Fashion" and "The Snob. Her name suggests the name of a man who clips sheep.

Number seven is a famous beauty who appears mostly in historical pictures like "Yolanda" or "Little Old New York" or "Lights of Broadway."

Then there is number eight, a big fine looking fellow, a great star of the screen for years. He's seen in Roman costume, but it's appropriate for he stars in "Ben Hur."

Watch this paper daily for more tips on them!

Every day there will be hints, suggestions, and information printed that will serve as a clue to you. Follow this lead and use your memory and you'll have an easy time of the guesses.

The slogans take a little ingenuity—perhaps the best way is to write down just what thought each star inspires in you. Maybe you'll write a slogan that will become famous—it just takes an idea—no literary skill or special education is required.

It's going to be great fun, for it tests the memory and requires just about the same skill as a crossword puzzle; and besides, it gives you a chance to see stars in interesting bits of informal action in the screen. For instance, this week the famous country boy "kicker" with the sophisticated girl, making bashful love, and taking you in on the joke. The great character actor stands before you and by clever trick photography his different characters walk out of his body—just like ghosts of his past. You'll see two other noted stars chatting informally—with yourself as a third party to the conversation.

You'll get acquainted with the celebrities—almost as if you knew them personally, in this remarkable film.

So don't fail to clip the coupon at once—and go to the Elite tonight.

Win one of those prizes—it's easy! Read the Post-Crescent every day for more details!

MILK DEALERS
COOPERATE IN MILK PROGRAMS

Extensive Advertising is Planned to Encourage Use of Milk and Milk Products

Milk distributors in Outagamie county are cooperating with the extension division of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture in conducting Milk Week in the county from May 3 to 8. The purpose of the milk campaign is to encourage wider use of milk and milk products.

Already 20 counties and one city in Wisconsin have had such campaigns. The need for a campaign here was shown in a survey of 16 schools in this county enrolling 500 children, it was said. The survey showed that 58 percent of the pupils drink one or more glasses of milk per day; 26 percent drink milk once in a while and 16 percent do not drink milk at all.

The plan for the week is as follows: During the week extension division workers will visit every schoolroom in the county and talk to the public on the value of milk as a food. Printed matter on this subject will be sent to each home.

Each child who drinks a certain amount of milk will be given a button to wear.

A poster contest will be held in the schools and prize ribbons will be awarded the winners.

A "milk" film will be shown in motion picture houses of the county during the week.

Merchants will cooperate by dedicating a part of their regular advertising space to urging the use of more milk.

Milk displays will be carried in store windows.

Advertising cards and posters will be posted in public places.

Milk week stickers will be used on all cars wherever practicable.

Pete Misses Fire, Loses
13.20 But Gets Thrill

Peter Kollack of Seymour is thinking how perfectly ridiculous is Joe McCarthy's one-time popular song, "Oh, for the Life of a Fireman."

Peter has a perfect right to his condemnation of McCarthy's ditty. For Peter tried to usurp the rights of the Appleton firemen Friday noon and Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Friday afternoon made Peter just $13.20 poorer than he was before he entered the courtroom.

But, let us go back in history a little. Peter is tooling his little car down College-ave at high noon with care and worry thrust to the four winds. But, hark, what is that sound? It is the sound of the fire gong, gentle reader, and Peter instantly becomes alert. He wheels his car around, grips his teeth for action, and he steps on the gas. The old foot-fee is ground into the floor board and the little car shoots ahead like the proverbial canoe that went over Niagara Falls.

John Kobussen, police car driver, hustles along in his big machine to the scene of the fire, but out of courtesy to the chief of the fire department, the police driver pulls to one side to let the speeding fire chief's car whizz past. But, John is startled by another sight. A machine that he did not figure on cuts in ahead of him at the tail of the fire chief's whizzing machine. Then John does his stuff. The big, hard heel of his big, heavy, calf-skin boot, goes down on the accelerator and the big police car leaps ahead like a huge monster.

An exciting race follows. The big police car is trying to overtake the little car at the tail of the fire chief's car. Pedestrians gape at the arresting sight. The big police car comes from behind and is neck and neck with the little machine trailing the fire chief's car. Soon the little machine is run in to the curb and stopped.

"Where are you going?" the police driver asks.

"I'm going to the fire," was Peter's reply.

"You mean, you WERE going to the fire," John shot back, "but instead you ARE going to the police station."

Peter did.

WHAT GOOD HE GOT FROM WIND

It's an ill wind that blows no good, according to the old saw.

But Harry Kotz of Grand Chute is trying to figure out just what good he got out of an ill wind that blew Friday.

While Harry was hauling a load of hay from Greenville to his barn, a sudden gust of wind, of the small hurricane variety, blew against his heavily-laden hayrack and sent the rack with the whole load of hay flying off the body of the wagon. It landed on the road side a few feet away. This happened on highway 47.

Neighbors helped Harry get the rack back on and very little of the hay was lost.

Harold Reitzner, 734 W. Harris-st., was fined $10 plus costs for automobile speeding by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Friday afternoon.

Speed Cop Carl Radtke got a flash at the meteoric Reitzner. "Too fast," thought Radtke to himself. A little burst of speed on the part of the officer and he was telling Reitzner that he would have to appear in court.

NO OPPOSITION TO TESTING
The special session of the legislature has passed, without a dissenting vote in either house, the $450,000 appropriation required to carry on the work of bovine tuberculosis eradication in Wisconsin. It was not at all, as Governor Blaine stated to the law-makers, an unforeseen emergency, for the administration had full knowledge of facts when the legislature was in regular session that pointed unmistakably to the adoption by Chicago of an ordinance prohibiting the sale in that city of milk from untested cows. The opposition to the appropriation, which was widely advertised, failed to materialize. Although an attempt was made to discredit the tuberculin test, it is to the credit of the legislators that not a single member was influenced by the fallacious argument offered. The absurdity, as well as the futility, of resisting restrictions on the sale of milk that are necessary to insure a tubercular-free product has finally impressed itself on the entire state and all but a handful of livestock owners.

Milwaukee announces that commencing with Oct. 1st, next, it will bar milk from untested cows. Other cities will do the same until there finally will be absolutely no market for milk that cannot be certified as having come from a tubercular-free herd, the certificate being based on an application of the tuberculin test. Those sources of milk supply which put themselves on this basis first will profit the most. They will develop markets for a guaranteed product that will not easily be taken from them, on the whole, we think the widespread and favorable reception given by Wisconsin farmers to the move to eradicate tuberculosis from their cattle speaks well for their judgment, foresight and business integrity.

COOLIDGE'S FARM BILL
The farm relief measure of the administration has been introduced in the house by Representative Tinscher of Kansas. The bill is supposed to embody the views of President Coolidge and in its main provisions to have his approval, along with that of the secretary of agriculture and the cabinet. The most striking thing about the proposed legislation is the careful avoidance of anything directly or indirectly in the nature of price fixing. The administration has steadfastly opposed the enactment of any law that would involve an attempt to arbitrarily fix or control prices. That was its objection to the formation of an export corporation financed by the government, and it is its objection to the Dickinson and corn belt surplus control bills. No equalization fees, therefore, are to be assessed on farm commodities to cover marketing costs.

The Tinscher measure is an extensive and elaborate application of the cooperative principle. It proceeds on the theory that the basic troubles of the American farmer which result from over-production of staple crops, can be satisfactorily met by effective cooperation. To this end an appropriation of $100,000,000 from the federal treasury is authorized. This fund is to support loans to cooperative associations engaged in marketing farm products. The measure further provides for the issuance of debentures to the amount of $1,000,000,000 to be used in financing marketing operations on a vast scale, under the direction of a farmers' marketing commission appointed by the president.

The principal purpose of this legislation is, of course, to prevent over-production. It is not in any sense designed to fix prices. While the details of the plan obviously must be left to those possessing expert knowledge of marketing, and while the success of the undertaking will depend upon the judgment used in conducting it, the bill is economically sound. It rests upon principles the value of which have been demonstrated over and over again in various specialized industries. It contains none of the fallacies of impractical theorists. It does not attempt to interfere with the laws of supply and demand, nor with the laws of commerce and distribution. On the contrary, it proposes to utilize these laws and do for agriculture on a tremendous scale what they do every day in other lines of production.

All that the government can be legitimately asked to do, and that can be safely utilized is provided. If the bill becomes a law it will mark the first great experiment in cooperative marketing for the benefit of the rank and file of American farmers. We see no reason why it should not succeed. Undoubtedly it will take time to perfect the working of so vast and intricate a piece of machinery, but it can be done under competent direction. The capacity of the commission appointed should determine the value of the project. Certainly it has in it the possibilities of greatly strengthening the position of the American farmer in world markets, to say nothing of domestic markets. It does not go as far as the extremists would like, but it is not unlikely it will remedy the real evils of which they complain and put agriculture once and for all upon a stable and prosperous footing.

THE BARK THAT WILL NOT MIX
The first step in the manufacture of paper from spruce logs is the complete removal of the brown bark. Science has found a way to use almost every waste product in industry but thus far no use has been found for spruce bark for it will not mix. Small chips or bits of bark left with the wood will resist every effort of the machinery, acids and other processes and appear in the finished paper as brown spots. Nothing can persuade the bark to mix. It starts out bark and remains bark to the end.

In every community there are bits of social bark—people who will not mix—people who resist every effort to make them a part of the community. They live in the community but are no part of it. They help support no charities, hold no offices, assume no responsibilities, give no assistance to any community move and are usually able to tell all that is wrong with the community.

They pride themselves on the fact that they attend to their own business. That is really their great fault. They attend only to their own business and the community business gets none of their time, interest or attention unless it is a criticism. They are often good people and good for nothing to the neighborhood.

If they belong to a church they go for what they can get and not for what they can give. If they belong to a lodge it is for the sake of the privileges and not for the good they can serve. If they belong to a club it is with the thought that it will help their business, not with the thought that it will help the town. They refuse to serve on committees, are professional duty-dodgers, alibi-shooters, complacent critics and unconscious recipients of public charity.

He who lives in a community and shares in its benefits without contributing to its needs is accepting the benefits of the public spirit of the community and giving nothing in exchange. That is charity. Pity the poor bark that will not mix.

TODAY'S POEM
By HAL COCHRAN
When real satisfaction's controlling your mind,
I wonder how often you've found that a person can say thing, though not meant unkind, and change all your feelings around.
It isn't so bad to be doing the things round the house that the Missus is wishin', but then comes a neighbor, whom readiness brings, by ayn', "Come on, let's go fishin'."
This grass cuttin' job is my favorite task," a home-loving man often thinks. But just at that time an acquaintance will ask, "How come you're not out on the links?"
You don't mind it much if a tire blows out while you gallop along, till some passerby very loudly will shout, "Hello, there, has something gone wrong?"
The nice just to take things that hit you, and grin. You might just as well, on the whole, but, all ways some person will stick their nose in and knock all your thoughts for a goal.

Health Talks

Noted Physician and Author
Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

WELL, WELL, HERE'S RESISTANCE (3)
When I asserted, in the most arresting way I could conceive, that the health teacher or doctor who speaks of exposure to cold, wet, fatigue or foul air "lowering resistance" has no scientific assurance I hoped to take a rise out of some of the reactionaries. Today I received a letter from a health officer who has some convictions but not the courage of his convictions, for he prefaces his remarks with a request that I indulge in "no personalities"—in other words this health officer would enter the debate provided he shall not be held responsible for anything he may say.

That's quite characteristic of the whole school of "cold" proponents. They prefer to keep in the dark, for when their position is examined in a clear light it becomes so ridiculous.

This anonymous health officer comes to the defense of the "lowered resistance" theory with what he seems to consider a scientific argument which will knock the wind out of my sails. He asks me rather rhetorically whether I have annulled the opsonic index as a measure of lowered resistance.

Well, well, that is more resistance than I expected to encounter. But it is precisely the sort of reaction the old guard exhibits whenever the "cold" box is held up in the light of reason.

The mere layman will wonder whether this opsonic index is something that occurs in families or something you catch as the movies. To obviate any anxiety let me say it is a measurement of the capacity of the white corpuscles of the blood to swallow or digest germs (phagocytosis).

If one scientific test the individual's white corpuscles are found to contain a number of bacteria greater than the number a normal individual's white cells take up, the individual has a high opsonic index. If his white corpuscles take up fewer germs than the normal standard, the opsonic index is low.

But this opsonic index is a measurement of immunity, not of infection. And not to quibble over terms, it has to do with infection and not with susceptibility to disease. That is to say, an individual's opsonic index depends upon the reaction of his blood to germ infections, and not vice versa. An individual's reaction to germ infections is not in any sense dependent upon his opsonic index. Let me confuse cause and effect here.

A victim of pneumococcus infection, he has opsonic index low or high, has a chill, probably, in the early hours of his illness. The chill is an effect of the germ infection. Of course every doctor knows that, but he has so long ago even the doctors around the belief that the chill in such cases was the cause of the illness.

If the opsonic index were a measurement of "resistance" it should be a comparatively simple matter for the reactionaries who still believe and teach that "exposure" to cold and wet "lowers resistance" to show by experiment that such a thing really happens. But alas, here again the villains are foiled. They've tried it out and they have nothing to say but "curses." Of course no amount of cold or wet, draft or bad weather, has any appreciable effect upon the opsonic index. It is wholly a result of infection.

No wonder this health officer prefers to remain anonymous. His defense of the old hokum is a confession of incompetence.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Two O'clock Languor
I am a government office clerk. At noon I take a moderate lunch, not an eye opener or zippy beverage, otherwise I get weak and headachy. Now how can I escape the agonizing languor that comes over me at 2 o'clock? Many others I hear complain of this. Please don't give a "smart" answer, but a suggestion that will possibly offer some relief. (W. A. C.)

Answer—Being a government clerk you just can't resist being impatient. Try eating an orange or any other sweet fruit about 2 o'clock.

SEEN, HEARD and IMAGINED
---that's all there is to life

Today's Sermon
Today I want to talk about something that is of vital importance to the whole human race. I do not mean beer or the Charleston, but something even more important than that. I want to talk about myself.

I am 26 years old, strong and strapping, and my mother never once had to raise a hand against me, except in self defense. All my life I have been a great student of human nature. I can tell by looking at a man if he is laughing or crying or talking or sleeping or drunk. In fact, I understand psychology so well that I can tell a colored man from a Chinaman.

To some it may be surprising that it is humanly possible for me to cover so much territory. But may capacity is practically unlimited. My brother Pete enjoyed the same kind of a capacity. One day while he was polishing the mahogany of a saloon with the elbow of his coat, he heard a couple of bar flies saying that it was humanly impossible for a man to drink five gallons of beer in five minutes. My brother took them up on it and said he could do it.

They bet him ten dollars he couldn't, but before he would cover their lettuce, he went over to another saloon across the street. Then he came back and laid ten pages of "the necessary" on the booze counter.

He was provided with the five gallons of beer and immediately proceeded to "put it away." When he had completed this disgusting and glutinous task, the men that made the bet with him were completely astonished at what had happened.

"Great Caesar's ghost, man," they cried out, "how did you ever manage to put that much grog away?"

"OH, I KNEW I COULD DO IT," REPLIED MY BROTHER. "WHY, BEFORE I COVERED YOUR BET I MADE IT A SURE THING BY SEEING IF I COULD DO IT. I WENT OVER TO THAT SALOON ACROSS THE STREET AND DONE IT. SO, YOU SEE, I HAD A SURE THING."

But that is only one of the funny things I remember. I recall an Italian named Tony Spaghetti who used to like to hunt although he was not very familiar with the type of game we have in this country.

One day Tony took his trusty fowling piece and went out in the woods in quest of game. He came upon an owl and shot it. Finding nothing else he brought the owl home, cooked it and ate it.

The next day he was a very sick man. So he went to see the doctor and had an examination.

"Why, Tony," the doctor asked, "what seems to be the matter?"

"Oh, I've been seek in da bell," replied the Italian.

"Why, what have you been eating?" asked the medic.

"OH, DOC," ANSWERED TONY, "I EAT-ADA CHICK WIT DA GREAT-A-BEEG EYES."

BUREAU PLANTS MILLIONS OF FISH ANNUALLY
Uncle Sam Puts More into Water Than He Takes Out of It, Haskin Says

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Washington, D. C.—Uncle Sam is an unusual fisherman because he puts more fish into the water than he takes out. He studies all varieties of fish native to American waters, and no function which could assist in the propagation, preservation, and wise utilization of the products of American waters is neglected.

Our national fisherman not only enriches the rivers, lakes and surrounding sea by planting millions of new fishes annually but maintains a fish doctor to study their well being. He then advises American fishermen of both commercial and sporting groups how best to catch and use the wealth of the waters.

The oysters is one of the most prolific of marine animals. A single large female emitting millions of eggs in a season. But the oysters is subject to many perils at all times. It leads a hard life. Its young are very minute, free-swimming animals wholly unlike the adult, and are killed in myriads by too much or too little salt in the water, by low temperatures, other marine life that preys on them, trade wastes and water pollutions, and particularly by falling on unsuitable bottom at the stage when they are ready to settle down and assume the adult form.

RESCUE STRANDED
An important conservation effected by the bureau of fisheries is the rescue of young fishes, left stranded on the recession of the waters of the Mississippi river after its annual flood stages. In 1923, 146,000,000 fish were taken from places in which they would have been killed by the drying up or freezing of the waters, and returned to the safety of the main stream. Not only are the fish saved but many of them are made to serve as aids in the restoration and conservation of the pearl mussel of the river, which constitute the raw materials of the pearl-button industry.

Before the rescued fishes are liberated they are placed in tubs of water and caused to become inoculated with large numbers of larval mussels, which after developing on the fish, are dropped automatically at the suitable stage of development and commence their independent life on the bottom. Between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 of these little mollusks are so liberated annually.

Fishes and other aquatic animals are subject to diseases like land animals, and both in a state of nature and in hatcheries are often visited by epidemics of high mortality. Two diseases which are common to fishes are dropsy and cryptosporidiosis.

PECULIAR FISH
The salmon requires unusual kinds of protection because it is one of the most peculiar of fish. It possesses a homing instinct that is more remarkable than that displayed by the homing pigeon. Tiny salmon swim out of the streams where they were spawned into great rivers and on out into the ocean. For several years they live in the deep waters. Then the time comes for the adult fish to spawn, and for this purpose the salmon, wherever it may be, returns to the shallow stream from whence it originally came.

The homing power of the salmon has never been explained, but by a tagging system the careers of some have been followed. Four thousand salmon were tagged in 1922 in one experiment. Rewards were offered for reporting the tags in some sections and in time 18 per cent—700 fish out of the 4,000—were reported either in the streams from which they came elsewhere. The roving tendencies of salmon were shown by the reports, last October, the bureau of fisheries received a letter from Vladivostok which said that a salmon marked by the "U. S. B. P." and bearing a certain number, was caught on the eastern shore of Kamchatka. This fish had traveled from southern Alaska to the Siberian coast in less than a year.

The bureau has already counted the salmon that swim up two Alaskan rivers. A weir built across the river prevents the fish from passing except through a narrow channel. A man with a counting arrangement is stationed at this point to count the fish as they go by. As many as 53,000 incoming fish have been counted by one of these men in a single day. These investigations, like similar ones of other fishes, are made for the purpose of establishing facts on which to base rational conservation measures.

In ordinary summer weather with this treatment sprouts are large enough to use about one-half week's time.

CITY TO INSTALL MORE THAN MILE OF WATER MAINS

Council Already Has Authorized 5,500 Feet for This Summer

With approximately 5,500 feet of water mains already authorized by the common council to be laid next summer, it is probable that more mains will be laid this year than in 1925, according to Fred Morris, secretary of the water commission. Exactly 8,488 feet were laid last summer, the records of the water department show.

Laying of water mains on 11 streets has been authorized to date, Mr. Morris reported. The streets and the number of feet on each are:

W. Summer-st., from N. Summit west 1,518 feet; N. Bouds-st., from S. Second to W. College-st., 415 feet; N. Erbst-st., from W. Wisconsin-ave. to W. Brewster-st., 581 feet; N. Drew-st., from E. Brewster to E. Circle-st., 337 feet; E. Circle-st., from N. Drew-st. to N. Monroe-st., 373 feet; S. Mason-st., from W. Spencer 205 feet south; N. Union-st., from E. Randall to E. Brewster-st., 284 feet; W. Eighth-st., from E. Brewster to W. Story-st., 340 feet; W. Eighth-st., from S. Douglas to S. Victoria-st., 291 feet; W. Franklin-st., from N. Mason to N. Outagamie-st., 665.5 feet.

Requests also were received at the last council meeting for water mains on W. Loraine-st. between N. Mason and N. Summit-sts., on S. Fairview-st. from W. Fourth-st. to the right-of-way of the Northwestern railroad on S. Mueller from W. Fourth-st. to the railroad right-of-way, and on W. Fourth-st. from S. Fairview to S. Mueller-st.

The requests were referred to the fire and water committee. Reports on them probably will be presented at the next council meeting.

START IN JUNE

Work of laying the mains probably will not start until the early part of June, in the opinion of Mr. Morris. Benefits and damages must be assessed against property owners along the streets in question, bids must be opened for the pipes, and contracts for digging the ditches must be let. This will require at least 45 days, Mr. Morris estimated.

The total length of water mains laid each year will grow less and less, unless the council authorizes new plans to be connected with water, according to Mr. Morris. Otherwise only a few thousand feet will be laid each summer, as the majority of streets in the most thickly populated areas of the city are already connected with the water system. It is hardly likely that the mark of approximately 20,000 feet of water mains met two years ago, will be reached in the near future, he said.

COMMERCE CLUB ANNUAL REPORT IS READY SOON

Members Asked to Indicate Committees They Wish to Serve With

Hugh G. Corbett, general secretary of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, and his office assistants are busy preparing the annual report of the chamber. They expect to have it completed the latter part of next week. The report was not ready at the time of the chamber's annual meeting last Monday because of other work which had to be disposed of.

Officers of the chamber also are reviewing the membership roll for committee appointments. Chairman of the various committees were appointed by the directors Wednesday evening. The remaining members will be selected by officers, subject to the approval of the committee chairman.

MEMBERS HAVE CHOICE

Letters asking their committee preferences were sent out to members recently. This was done to give members an opportunity of serving on the committees of their choice. Such a plan will promote greater and more efficient work, officers declared. A number of letters expressing committee preference but containing no signatures have been returned to the chamber of offices, Mr. Corbett reported. With few exceptions, it will be impossible to determine the result in the appointments, according to Mr. Corbett. He suggested that any members who are not certain whether they signed their names to the letters notify him at once.

The convention committee of the Lions club will meet with the publicity and convention committee of the chamber of commerce at the chamber offices Friday evening to select a medium which the Lions club delegates to the national convention at San Francisco, Calif., July 22, 23, 24, can use to advertise Appleton at the convention. It is the custom of civic clubs all over the country to advertise their particular cities at conventions of this nature, and the local organization is seeking a suitable means by which this may be accomplished.

Rumors that the man who kidnaped Frances Webb, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Webb, Neenah, last Tuesday, had been arrested, were branded by Appleton police Friday as false. ## BUSINESS MAN MAKES BID AS CHAMP EATER

Endurance contests of every kind and even famous feasting orgies of the ancient Romans had best look to their laurels as the result of an endurance "eating" stunt by an Appleton man in an E. College-ave restaurant Thursday. The new champion, a well-known local business man, was having his noon meal with a party of friends and when they had finished they declared that they could not eat another bite. However, our hero spoke that he could eat "three more meals like that." The meal consisted of meat, fried potatoes, vegetable, milk, water, pie and two slices of bread.

His friends immediately wagered that he couldn't make the grade, declaring that they would pay for the meals if he devoured them inside of an hour and he accepted the bet. In a half hour he had eaten two more square meals and the friends were beginning to look dubious. He started the fourth meal slowly and his motions became slower and slower as he went along. At the end of ten minutes with about more than half of the meal devoured and twenty more minutes to go, he gave up. The man had eaten three and one-half average meals in about an hour and ten minutes. He paid $2 for his heavy appetite and also spent about two more hours in misery as the result of his orgy.

EXCITING MYSTERY IN "OTHER WOMAN'S STORY"

A carefully balanced mystery plot is one of the most fascinating themes of literature and drama.

So deep is the mystery women in "The Other Woman's Story," the B. P. Schulberg production, which comes to the New Bijou Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, that it is guaranteed to balk the sleuthing instincts of any motion picture audience. The thread of the story hinges upon a murder that has come as a startling climax to a sensational divorce case. This plot is based on an actual case that startled America. A rapid fire story is carried out for six reels before the guilty character is revealed.

It has its setting for the most part in one of the most realistic courtroom settings ever constructed for a motion picture. The story also strikes a high note of romance and is crammed with dramatic thrills.

With a featured cast of ten prominent screen players the picture offers real entertainment for persons whose blood runs fast.

them about her, the lady of the house enters and takes the cute Irene for a society dame. And then the fun begins.

You'll be interested to learn the fate of this winsome little gray mouse who invaded the precincts of the mighty. The opportunity will be afforded you at the Elite Theatre starting Monday.

PRETTY GIRLS SHOW US HOW TO DANCE CHARLESTON

This is on Mme. Sakharoff, Parisian dancer discovered in a recent contest.

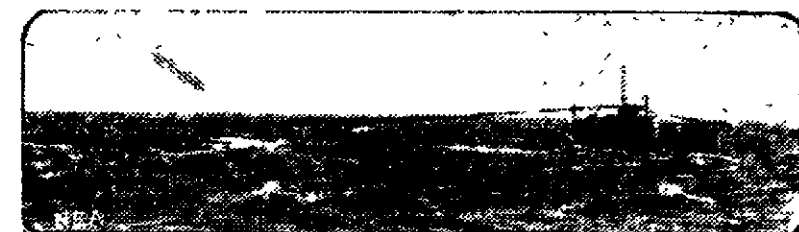

The pretty Morgan dancers, of Hollywood, say the Charleston isn't being danced properly on the stage. So they called in a cameraman and showed him their idea of the way to do it. The cameraman was kept very busy. Left to right, the dancers are Thyra La Fort, Leslie Rodrick and Ruth Miles.

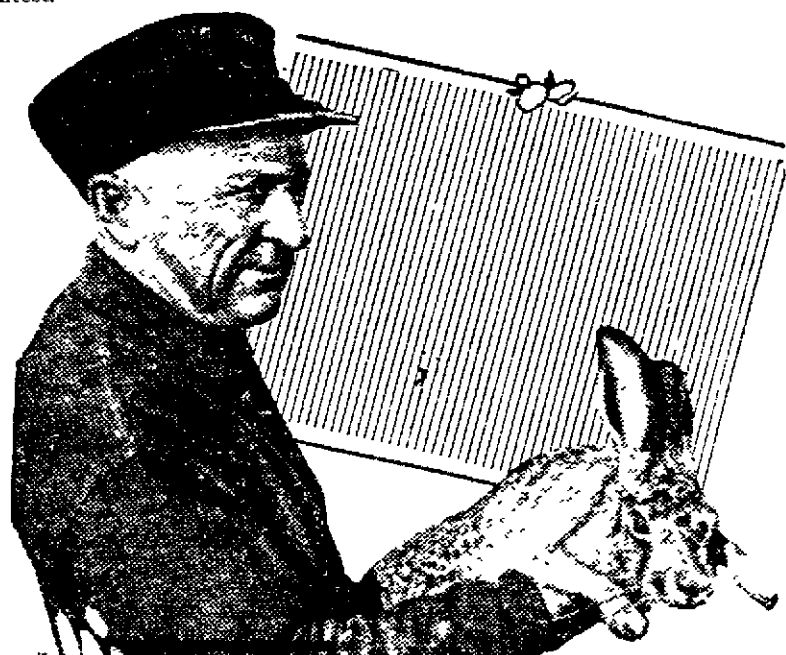

This is the very latest in Hollywood (Calif.) bird life—a synthetic creature, composed of seeds, pods and cones of shrubs and trees growing in California.

This ancient blacksmith shop at Uxbridge, Mass., has been purchased by Henry Ford and will be added to his collection of antiques at the Wayside Inn, Sudbury, Mass.

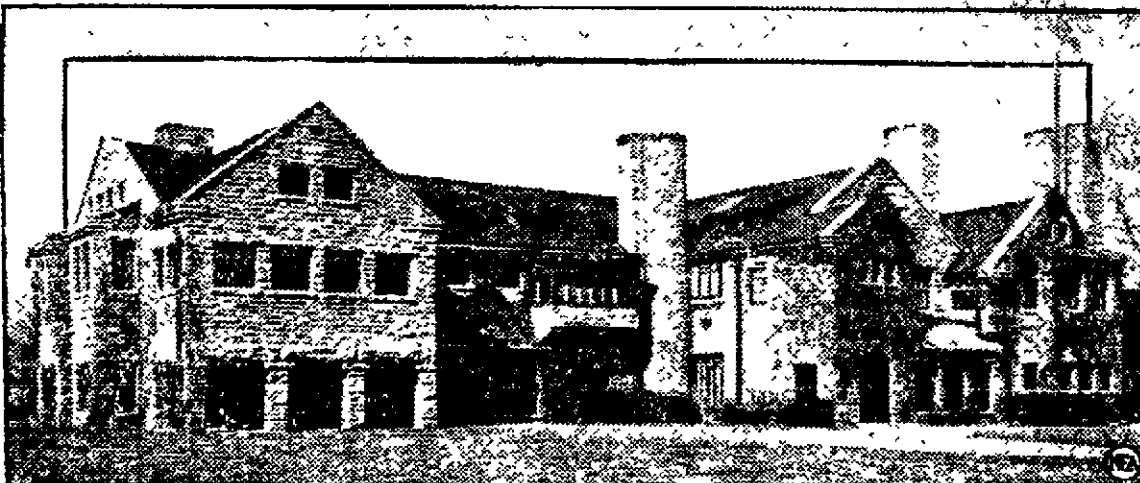

Uncle Sam's big submarine V-1 emerges off the Rhode Island coast after a test dive of 300 feet to the ocean's floor. Seams leaked slightly at this extreme depth, but the V-1 was pronounced a success.

P. P. Doze of Norwich, Kas., might be called the world rabbit king at least, he expects to sell about 20,000 rabbits this year. He sells jack rabbits to race course promoters and cottontails to game preserves, and has $5000 invested in traps and nets to catch them.

Here is the most recent portrait of Italy's newest princess—the little daughter of Princess Yolanda. She's King Victor Emmanuel's only grandchild.

This is the half-million-dollar mansion built by the late William R. Nelson, founder of the Kansas City Star. It must be destroyed under the terms of the will left by the last member of the Nelson family, Mrs. Laura Nelson Kirkwood, who died recently. She directed that her husband, Irwin Kirkwood, have the use of the house as long as he lives, but that it be destroyed when he dies, as she does not want strangers ever to occupy the place.

Milo. Francine Lanier, obviously, wears her heart where her sleeve used to be. She is displaying Paris' latest, Cupid's Bracelet. By clasping the arm closely, the broken arrows gives the effect of piercing the skin.

This alligator, said to be the largest ever captured alive, was caught by workmen draining a Florida swamp. He measures 14 feet 8 inches and weighs over a ton and experts assert he is more than 100 years old. He is now in the Cincinnati (O.) Zoological Gardens.

"Buster," the baby hippopotamus of Washington (D. C.) zoo pictured here with his mother, is for sale—cheap. If you have $2500 and a fondness for pets, here's the chance of a lifetime.

These ladies of the chorus aren't regular pony steppers; they're co-eds at the University of Kansas who'll appear in the university musical comedy, "Wango Pango," at Lawrence, Kas., for two performances. Left to right they are Beth Reese, Juanita Sawson, Winogene Lacy, Mildred Hunsberger, Ruth Lawless, Marian Morgan, Beth McJung and Mary Allen.

This charming camera study is of the beautiful Princess Irene of Greece, sister of the former Greek king and of the Crown Princess of Rumania.

MRS. EMIL BROWN, FREMONT MOMAN, IS ACTIVE AT 93

Has Been Resident of Fremont Since Close of Civil War in 1865

Special to Post-Crescent.
Fremont — Mrs. Emil M. Brown, Fremont's oldest resident, is still hale and hearty at 93. She is physically strong and has regular daily exercise, and her faculties are remarkable for her age. Mrs. Brown lived the first thirty odd years of her life in New York, in the northern part of the state, near the Adirondack mountains and the Hudson river. Her husband and she moved to Wisconsin and settled in Fremont in the spring of the year at the close of the Civil War (1865), over a score of years before the village was incorporated (1888). "At that time there were few buildings in Fremont," says Mrs. Brown, "and the structures were mostly log cabins or shanties. There were few frame houses here when I came. The roads were very poor or were mere trails through the woods. There was little cleared land then. Indians traveled through and about the village, and camped at the 'Redbanks' and 'Springer's Point,' now resorts on the Wolf river. I like my environment and believe in Fremont." The Ladies Auxiliary of the Union church met with Mrs. Ernest Schmidt at her home Thursday afternoon. The following members were present: Mrs. N. M. Johnson, Mrs. Arthur Brown, Mrs. George Steiger, Mrs. Alpheus Steiger, Mrs. Sherburne, Mrs. Edwin Sherburne, Mrs. William Behnke, Mrs. George N. Dobbins, Mrs. Lark Lovejoy, Mrs. Guy Kinsman, Mrs. Frank Saxton, Mrs. Anna Kuhl, Mrs. Richard Sommers, Miss Dorothy Lovejoy, Mrs. Ervin Menger. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George M. Dobbins. Work has begun on construction of a filling station on the corner lot opposite the bank, by Frank Emmons of Appleton. Paving and mason work is being done now. Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Prentice visited relatives at Dale Tuesday. Mrs. Edwin Sherburne went to Appleton Tuesday. Fremont farmers are hauling crushed stone from the County crusher at Ledge hill near Readsfield to the road in the village from the bank to the Lutheran church. Carl Peters manages the crusher. Saturday night, April 17, the home talent play under the auspices of the Dramatic club and the Women's improvement club, "The Road to the City," will be given at the Dalman opera house. The second meeting at the Union church last Thursday evening, for the purpose of erecting a community church was unsuccessful. The Presbyterian members of Union church met at the church Thursday afternoon and decided to keep the church in the Presbyterian name, and repair the church building. Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Billington and daughter went to Oshkosh Thursday. Married Folks Dance, Legion Hall, Little Chute, Tues., April 20th.

COACH COMPANY BUYS 3 PERMITS; 2 MORE NEEDED

His arrest was the fifth by the police department. The other drivers arrested were Dewey McGee, Fred Powers, Edward Yaroshuk and Lawrence Bauer, all of Milwaukee. # THE YELLOW STUB

by Ernest Lynn

BEGIN HERE TODAY
HENRY RAND, 35 a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the yellow stub of a theater ticket.

JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Milwaukee, where the theater stub is traced to THOMAS FOGARTY, who says he gave it to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LAWELL. Later he encounters Olga. She faints when she hears police want her for murder. Mary, but with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub and handkerchief might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before. Jimmy receives several mysterious warnings to leave Milwaukee, but ignores them. Later he is attacked at night by two men. He escapes, after seizing a blackjack from one of them.

With Jimmy and Mary estranged, Church presses his advantage and gets Mary's promise to marry him. Mary tells Jimmy his when they meet in a park. Jimmy, trying to hurt her, accuses her of marrying for money. He goes back to his room and calls up Olga, asking her to meet him.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIII

Jimmy, sitting in the hotel mezzanine, saw Olga Maynard approach and rose to meet her.

"I'll have to apologize for my appearance," she said, taking his hand. "I didn't give me much time, and I still dressed for the street."

She was wearing a fur-trimmed coat over a blue worsted street dress, and a small tight-fitting black beneath which her light curly hair showed.

"I look fit to go anywhere," he smiled. "But we're only going to a place where we can eat and a little music."

"And dance?" she asked eagerly. "You know I've never danced with you and you're a wonderful dancer. I've seen you."

"Why, that night you first spoke to me. I saw you dancing with the man you were with before you came to see me. Who was she?"

She ignored her question; turned a face away and bit his lip.

"All right," he assented. "We'll go to the place where I met you," she suggested. "The Madrid."

She was not looking at him, and she missed the expression of pain that flitted across his features.

"The Madrid it will be," he said. "I've forced myself to go, and I thought I'm trying to forget I've ever started about it the wrong way."

They found a table for two, and she studied her menu card before she looked at him and picked at the table where he and Mary would have sat on that never-to-be-forgotten night. He shut his eyes, living that evening, conjuring up a picture of Mary and him chatting together.

He shook his head, resolutely putting the thought out of his mind. "I suggest something for you," he asked Olga, "or have you made up your mind?"

"You go ahead and order for me. I'll be more fun," she flashed. "I'm a gay smile, the first he had seen from her in weeks."

"You haven't asked me to dance," he said a little later. "Don't you want to?"

It occurred to him that he must have appeared a very dull companion. He had been answering in monosyllables to her conversational monologues, his mind far away.

"We'll start right now," he answered, throwing down his napkin and pushing back his chair. And then they were on the floor and he handed himself completely to the music.

They danced encore after encore. They were still standing on the floor, tapping their feet, long after the orchestra's plaintive "that's all," and they laughed when they saw that the orchestra leader was bowing directly to them and that they were alone on the floor.

"I must say," she laughed when they had sat down again, "that when you get your mind on a thing, doesn't it get off quickly?"

"Meaning just what?" he asked. "Well, when you make up your mind to dance, you dance, don't you? Wasn't it funny the two of us standing out there alone, clapping like two kids?"

"It was your dancing. That's the answer," he changed the subject. "Music is a great tonic, isn't it? Dancing to music like this makes you want to live, doesn't it?"

She nodded thoughtfully. "And it helps you to forget."

"Yes," he said slowly. "It helps you to forget."

She turned her face away, made a pretense of studying her glass. He lit a cigarette and offered the package to her.

"I almost forgot," he said. "You smoke, don't you?"

"No, I don't any more."

He frowned. "Olga, I wonder if you realize how much you've changed?" Cutting out smoking is another thing.

"I've tried to change—Jimmy."

The use of the nickname startled him. He sent a sudden pain darting through him. She was looking at him intently.

"Shouldn't I have called you that?" he asked.

"Why not? I call you Olga, don't I? But," she said, switching the topic, "you know you've never told me about yourself. I guess you know my history pretty well. What's yours?"

She was silent for a while, looking down at her plate. Then she said, "I'll tell you, sometime, but not just now. Let's dance."

Jimmy was beginning to find an anesthetic in the music. The dull feeling of misery that had been with him all afternoon had gone and he became conscious, for the first time, of the fact that he was holding a pretty girl in his arms.

"You certainly can dance," he told her, as he piloted her gracefully through the crush of swaying couples. And it was true. She moved with a sort of feline grace and followed him unerringly in his every step.

"Who couldn't, with you?" she breathed. "You'd make an ideal dancing partner on the stage?"

"Oh, you've danced on the stage?" "Well, not very much. It's hard to get a real chance. The best I've been able to get a regular job at is cabaret singing, as you know."

"Some day," he said, "you may get your chance. When you do, I know you'll be a success."

"Maybe I won't want the chance now if it comes," she murmured. "Why, what do you mean?" He stared at her.

"Oh, nothing." She shook her head and glanced up at him brightly. "Come on. Don't stop. She grabbed him more closely, swaying her shoulders, and he fell into her mood, forgetting everything but the fact that there was music and movement and a girl.

The orchestra leader was bowing again. "I hate to stop," Olga said as she sat in her chair. "I want to keep on forever."

"I do, too," he agreed. He said, "I hate to stop. I hate to wake up. I hate to face tomorrow."

"Well, you surely haven't lost sight of the fact that I'm here trying to find the man that killed my father. I've never got over the first shock of Dad's death. It was so cruel—so unnecessary. I'll never forget it."

"I know." She reached out and laid her hand on his. "And that's what they're trying to connect me with. God! How can they believe such a thing of me? You don't, do you, Jimmy?"

"No, you know I don't."

"You don't believe I'm a—bad woman, do you?"

The question startled him. "Why, what ever put the thought in your head? Why should I?"

"All I've wanted to do, Jimmy, is to live. I've done some things that are not exactly approved of in the best society. You know what Lieutenant O'Day said about me."

"I don't care what O'Day says—or anybody, else."

"I don't care what O'Day says—or anybody, else."

"You are trying now—you are helping me, Olga. I can't ask any more."

She was silent for a moment. Then she said, "What else are you trying to forget, Jim?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "Why, nothing, Olga. Nothing else. What else could there be?"

"It's a girl, isn't it?" she persisted. "Was it the girl I saw you with here that night?"

He laughed, and lifted his glass of water to his lips. "There's no other girl."

She looked at him intently. "You'd never make a successful liar. It's true, isn't it?"

He said in a low voice, "No, it's not true. There's no girl."

She ignored his denial. "Whoever it is, Jim, she has no right to do what she's doing. She isn't good enough for you."

"Don't," he cried sharply, putting up his hand. "I mean it. You're too good for her. You're too good for any woman."

He rose from his chair. "You're talking nonsense now, Olga. Come on, we'll have to be going. It's getting late. Did I tell you I have a new job? I start to work at seven-thirty tomorrow morning."

She followed him. "No. What are you going to do?"

"I'm going to drive a laundry truck," and he laughed at her look of surprise.

"I don't understand you," she said when they had reached the street.

"Don't try to," he laughed. "Look," he said, "do you remember this spot? It was just up the street here that you fainted that night and I put you in the taxi and took you home." His face clouded at the recollection.

"I was near the end of my rope that night," she said, clutching at his arm. "Jim, did you ever get to thinking seriously of killing yourself? That's how I felt that night. I felt as if I didn't have a friend."

"You have one now, Olga."

"Jim, do you mean it?"

"I certainly do." He pressed her arm and turned at her to find an expression of horror on her face.

"Look," she cried. "In that car! She pointed to an automobile, halted momentarily beside them in the traffic. He looked and gave a sudden start. Sitting with his face pressed close to the window of the closed car was the man with whom he had had the fight that night he was shadowed.

"It's the man I've been looking for," cried Olga, "the man I told you about!"

CLEAN UP, KEEP CLEAN, STATE'S REQUEST OF CITY

Fire Department Receives Communication from Industrial Commission

The first of a series of urgent requests to aid in "cleaning up" the city in preparation for a strenuous campaign during "clean up" week this year has been issued by the Wisconsin industrial commission to the Appleton fire department. Local residents are asked to help clean up the city. Following are some suggestions from the commission's message.

"The calendar says spring is here. The accumulated rubbish and debris is also here. Clean up before the busy summer season starts and rid your premises of fire hazards. —Somewhere in basement or closets are paint cans and perhaps paint tins which may start a fire. The winter's accumulation of the family paper is piled in the basement. Up in the attic are hat boxes with tissue paper, broken furniture, and enough other materials to make a good bonfire. The foundation of the barn and frame house may be packed with straw ready to catch the chimney sparks; the yard may be full of weeds, dry grass and leaves. The old shingle roof may have a covering of moss and punk ready to ignite. You may still find shavings and chips where the last carpenter you employed left them. Down in the basement of your store are five dollars worth of boxes and banana crates to encourage your fifty-thousand dollar stock. Under the eaves of shops are machines and in corners of shops may be sawdust into which oil has dripped. Oily waste may be found anywhere. —Clean up, sell salable junk to the ragman, and destroy the rest; fix up that roof; clean out the chimney and smokepipes and store the pipes in a dry place when fires are no longer needed; use whitewash and paint liberally; grow grass; flowers and vegetables instead of unsightly weeds. —These are just simple, common sense rules to make your home and shop safe and more beautiful. Seventy-five per cent of the fires are due to carelessness. Get out of the rut of being 75 per cent careless. Every careless fire is a reflection on somebody's common-sense. —Clean up now, then keep clean."

PASS STONES BY HAND TO BUILD HAWAIIAN CHURCH

The ancient Hawaiian method of building temples was revived in Honolulu recently when 2000 Christian high school students formed a mile-long human chain and passed stones from the school campus to the summit of Puncchewi, an extinct volcano inside the city, to build a church there. ## APPLETON RADIO SHOP PREPARED TO GIVE SERVICE

Shop Sets Up Several Aerials to Test Sets Under Various Conditions

Prompt and efficient service both in the installation of new radio sets and in repairing of old ones is the watchword of the Appleton Radio Shop at 118 S. Appleton-st. Some dyed-in-the-wool radio fans hate to miss a single evening's program and it is these persons who turn to the Appleton Radio shop for help when anything goes wrong with their set. This is the place where speedy and lasting repairs are guaranteed. There is no need of missing an evening's program even if the battery is rather weak, for an extra battery will be supplied while the other is charged over night at the radio shop. Batteries are called for and delivered. A new battery charged has recently been installed which is able to charge between 15 and 20 batteries at the same time.

A large line of accessories, including tubes, batteries and loud speakers of all varieties are kept in stock at the shop so that when repairs are called for they can be made quickly on practically any make of set. Tubes are tested free at the shop and excellent service in tube rejuvenation is provided. Arrangements for testing sets on several antennae have been made at the shop so that all conditions peculiar to various home localities will be experienced in the trial tests.

Particular emphasis has been placed on the building of special made to order sets at the Appleton Radio shop. In this work special features and more exacting requirements are usually called for and the quality of workmanship must be exceptionally high.

Dallas Jensen, proprietor of the shop has announced that he is planning to place on sale in the near future a recent invention in the world of radio, known as a battery eliminator, a device by which a set may be operated directly from an electric light socket thus cutting out the need for any batteries. Such an accessory bids fair to revolutionize the radio industry for a set equipped with such a fixture will require practically no attention as there will be no trouble with weak and run down batteries.

The Appleton Radio shop is the agency for Kennedy, Crosley and Fried Blumman sets. The concern has handled the Kennedy, one of the most popular radio sets, for the last four years.

BUMPS AND BOUNCES TOLD ON NEW DEVICE

Dayton, O., (AP)—There are speedometers and pedometers and there is the accelerometer. But the accelerometer does not measure miles or steps. It records bounces and bumps. It is an intricate little device placed under the pilot's seat in an airplane and it tells how the flyers' bodies stand the strain of being hurled around in their seats, while the plane makes loops, spirals, nose dives and other forms of aerial gymnastics.

The device was perfected by Lieut. James H. Doolittle of McCook field, the engineering division of the army air service. It contains a small strip of film on which is outlined the stress and strains of the body.

Lieut. Doolittle has found that a pilot can withstand instantaneous and sharp movements of the plane, but comparatively slower dips and dives, continued for several seconds, causes the pilot to temporarily lose his faculties.

He has discovered that a flyer, even in the pink of condition, can withstand the intense pressure resulting when a plane is turned around a pylon at high speed, only for a limited time. Twelve seconds is the limit.

When such turns are made, all the blood is forced down to the feet and as high speed airplanes are constantly being developed and bettered it was necessary to devise a means of finding out just how much a flyer could endure.

Investors Must Use Care When They Purchase Bonds

Babson Park, Florida—Roger W. Babson continues his investment talks by today telling something about bonds and how to select them. "I think you buy when you don't know just what to buy and the thing in which to invest when you don't know in what to invest," Mr. Babson's complete statement is as follows:

WHAT ARE BONDS
"In a previous article I stated that local mortgages probably present the best combination of security and yield," he explained that considerable care is necessary in connection with the loaning of money on mortgages. I referred to the examination of the title, preparation and recording of the papers, watching insurance policies, and other details. Furthermore, it is often difficult to secure good mortgages in small amounts. To make it unnecessary for individual investors to bother with these details, at the same time to enable them to get good mortgages in the denomination of one thousand dollars, the following plan was devised some seventy-five years ago. Instead of negotiating direct to the lender the borrower mortgages his property to a Trust company, which acts as a third party between the borrower and various lenders. The Trust company examines the title, prepares the legal papers and does all the other work. It then—as Trustee—divides the mortgage into pieces of one thousand dollars each, which are sold as 'bonds'. If, for instance, the mortgage to the Trust company is one hundred thousand dollars the Trust company would issue one hundred Certificates or Bonds for a thousand dollars each so that the holder of one of these bonds would have 1-100 interest in the mortgage which the Trust company holds as Trustee for all the bondholders.

BONDS VS. BONDS
The idea underlying a bond issue is absolutely sound. Like other good things, however, the idea has been abused and many 'investments' are being sold today under the name of bonds which would never be recognized by the founder of the idea. In addition to the first mortgage bonds, which were the only kind originally planned, there now are Second Mortgage Bonds, Consolidated Mortgage Bonds which are part first and part second, Collateral Trust Bonds where the Trust company has no mortgage but holds certain stocks or other collateral, and Debenture bonds which are merely plain notes unsecured by mortgage. Of course a Debenture bond of the New York Central R. R. Co. is better than a first mortgage bond of the N. Y. Z. Theatrical company; but when considering only one company the First Mortgage Bonds are the safest, the Consolidated Mortgage bonds come next, the Collateral Trust bonds come next, and the Debenture bonds last of all.

"This means that one should strive to get First Mortgage Bonds of a company, but the standing of the company issuing the bonds is of course of primary importance in all business transactions and a bond which is not a First Mortgage but put out by good people is better than a regular First Mortgage bond put out by irresponsible promoters. Careful investors are giving more and more attention to the character of the companies to whom they loan and the bankers from whom they buy securities. Owing to the fact that there are so many poor bonds on the market today it is important to buy bonds only through established bond houses whom your local banks recommend and with whom they themselves trade. This is the first rule for selecting good bonds.

GOVERNMENT AND STATE SUPERVISION A PROTECTION
"Although character is the greatest asset in business, yet too much dependence cannot be put on the present management of a corporation when purchasing a bond that does not come due for fifty years. Although men make values, yet men die and no one can foresee who their successors will be. Therefore it is well to purchase bonds of a company which is compelled to publish its earnings and is supervised either by the Interstate Commerce Commission or some other Federal or State body. Although such supervision does not in any way guarantee the safety of a bond issue, yet it gives an advantage to the small investor who cannot supervise such things himself. Another indirect advantage of such supervision comes about as follows: The state only wishes to supervise the accounts of corporations having a monopoly. Thus when purchasing bonds issued under the authority of a Federal or state commission one is more apt to get bonds which are secured by a monopoly of some kind. Such corporations are free from loss by competition than are ordinary corporations.

"When you are the only manufacturer of a product which people want, your bonds and stocks are perfectly good; but when other corporations start in to manufacture the same product your stock and bonds are in a bad way. Competition may be the life of trade but it does not make for profit. This means that the bonds of a Railroad, a Public Utility, or some other corporation having a natural monopoly and regulated by State Commission are better than the bonds of some manufacturing, mercantile, or mining corporation which has neither a monopoly or state regulation. Now when it comes to the purchase of common stocks, this rule does not apply. Personally, I should dislike very much to have the state control my own business and had rather take a chance with competition than with government interference. I am now writing, however, on the selection of bonds and not of common stocks.

Hence the second rule in selecting good bonds is to purchase bonds of some corporation with a natural monopoly whose capitalization rates and general actions are subject to Federal or state regulations. WATCH THE AGE OF YOUR BONDS
Corporations are similar to people, and this is not surprising because corporations are merely made up of people. When a corporation is first formed there is no telling what it will turn out to be. Like children, a very large percentage die in their early years. Thus it is unwise for the small investor to buy bonds in a company which has just been formed. Wait until the new company has learned from experience just what it can earn. Rather than buy securities on estimated earnings it is better to complete and operated for two or three years. This is a very good precaution when purchasing bonds on hotels, apartment houses, and other buildings. It is better to wait two or three years and pay a little more if one wishes to play safe, although of course everyone can't do this. But as the death rate is heavy among young children, it is also heavy among corporations. It is also heavy on unwise to hold bond issues too long. Because a bond issue was once good, no sign that it will always be good. In fact this is almost a reason why some day it won't be good. Prosperity ruins corporations as it does families. The Bible statement 'Pride cometh before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall' applies to railroads, public utilities, and other corporations as well as to men and women. For this reason it is desirable not to indefinitely hold one's bonds but to have a house cleaning once in a while.

"If one buys five bonds a year it is a very good practice to likewise sell five bonds a year selling those which he has held say fifteen years or more at the outside. Of course in following such a custom one should not sell during a panic but only in good times when bonds are in demand. When, however, such a good time comes and you decide to sell the bonds which you have held for a certain period of say about fifteen years, be sure to sell all that come in that class and not simply the good ones. The man who sells only the securities which show him a good profit is automatically selling his good holdings and keeping his poor holdings. This is especially true of small investors who are constantly trading their bonds with brokers who know little about them than do they themselves. Such investors are like the man who traded the horse for a better cow, the cow a peddlered calf, the calf for a hamster and the hamster for a mousetrap. Hence the third rule when buying bonds is to select bonds which have demonstrated their earning capacity and companies which are running on their own generated power and not on their momentum. It is well to buy an automobile which has a good reputation; but remember that the car will not run on its reputation. It requires gas and oil and care. The same principle applies to corporations which issue bonds which are sold to innocent investors.

"Business continues very steady— it now registers by the Babsonchart 10 per cent above normal." Copyright—1926—Publishers Financial Bureau.

LUMBER BUSINESS IS RECOVERING FROM SLUMP

Trade in lumber showing the first signs of recovery from the recent dull spell resulting from unseasonable spring weather, which restricted both sales and production. Shipments of lumber for the first week of the first thirteen weeks of the year were about two hundred and fifty million feet ahead of their cut, because of an expectation that an earlier start could be made on spring building, and there was thus a surplus of arrivals in some distributing centers, and some weakness in prices there, but these stocks are now being absorbed. Mostly as a result of the impossibility of getting contractors to accept deliveries, retail yards have been buying very lightly, but the beginning of the spring movement finds them in the market to replenish their supplies. Most of the business so far, says the American Lumberman, Chicago, is in cuts containing an assortment of items, but general reports that these are wanted hurriedly disclose a condition of retail stocks that promises early expansion of the movement from mills.

The southern pine cut during the week ended April 2 was nearly thirteen per cent below normal; shipments exceeded by almost seven per cent, and orders, by one and a half per cent. Most of the larger mills whose reports are included in these statistics have managed to operate under difficult conditions, but numerous smaller mills have been forced to close, and it is said that it will be a couple of weeks before they are able to resume logging. Prices throughout the list therefore show a good deal firmer tone.

PICTURES TALK IN ADVERTISING, ENGRAVERS SAY

Appleton Engraving Co. Has Corps of Artists and Engravers

The appeal of pictures is the most eloquent language in advertising. A single illustration will quickly awaken an impulse, paint a description or explain an idea much more clearly than many paragraphs of sales copy. The Appleton Engraving Co., located on W. Water-st is primarily a creative organization and boasts a corps of artists and engravers who for years have demonstrated their ability to make pictures talk. They are interested not only in the physical perfection of the finished plate, but they keep in mind the very essential fact that the purpose of the engraving is to sell products or service for its clients. Thus a broad understanding of how to translate purpose into pictures is the business of the engraver.

A great many buyers of advertising designs and illustrations, including practically all the large and progressive manufacturers in the Fox River Valley have found complete satisfaction in the work of the Appleton Engraving Co., and who are jubilant over the substantial increase in their sales, due in a large measure to the combination of skill, vision and knowledge of appealing composition and treatment obtained in their advertising by patronizing the local engraving concern.

The direct advertising department of this Appleton concern is competent to handle entire advertising campaigns for a year in advance, or occasional pieces during the course of the year—whichever the customer feels inclined to favor.

Rough idea sketches and dummies are used to give the customer an idea of various designs. A dummy is the only possible means of arriving at the total cost of a piece of advertising and is indispensable as a guide to the printed piece.

In advertising literature such as booklets, catalogs, folders, and circulars, the main idea is to attract attention to the goods described, and for this one must use something more than plain cold type. It is easy to get a certain atmosphere of truth from a good photograph or illustration of some kind in keeping with the written message and this is what helps put the sale across.

LIGHTS ARE POOR
Chicago—Of 445 manufacturing plants studied by the University of Illinois, less than 10 per cent were found to have excellent lighting, 32 per cent were graded as poor, with the balance from very poor to fair. Rather unexpectedly it was disclosed that on an average about five out of eight employees suffer from defective vision.

West Coast fir mills sold 2 percent more than their output during the week ended April 3. With building weather at hand, there is now every assurance that the market will remain firm. Italian trade is especially good, and the offshore markets are showing more interest than in a good while. But domestic cargo markets are quiet. Neither California, Florida nor the Atlantic seaboard taking much lumber. All these markets have large needs, however, and fir producers are confident of a good year's business.

Southern hardwood trade is inactive. Furniture makers buy sparingly, and building demand for flooring and millwork is held down by bad weather. There is a fair movement to the automobile industry, and export prospects are said to be looking much brighter. Shippers have continued to reduce mill holdings, and dry stocks are becoming scarce, so that quotations are stiffening. The northern hardwood movement has suffered from the bad weather, but the market outlook is good and most prices have remained firm.

Adventures Of The Twins

THE FORTUNE TELLER IN THE HICKORY TREE

Mister Rubadub peeped into all his cans and shook all his bottles. Then he looked into the soap box, and shook his head.

"It's a good thing that nearly everybody is spring-cleaned," Mister Hare," he said. "All the cleaning stuff is about finished. Didn't Marty Mink and Charley Otter look fine when they were finished?"

"I should say so," said the March Hare, "nick as new brooms."

At that he looked in his big book again where all the names were.

"Dear, Dear," he muttered. "Here's Reddy Fox's name. He hasn't been done yet. I almost forgot him."

"On let's skip him," said Nancy. "He's too mean."

"Can't," said Mister Rubadub. "The Fairy Queen would find it out and she save stick orders to scrub everybody, regardless of disposition or anything else."

"He'll be harder to catch than a greasy pig," said the March Hare. "But if we must, we must. Come on children."

So away went the three of them again down the little path to the little bush, and then across the meadow to the woods where Reddy Fox lived. "I don't know what house Reddy Hare rented this year," the March Hare was saying, when suddenly from the trunk of a large—a very large hickory tree beside them, came a voice.

"Fortunes told! Fortunes told! Who wants his fortune told?"

"Who are you? And where are you?" said the March Hare, stroking his whiskers and trying to look as if he didn't care any more about having his fortune told than he did about last Christmas' plum pudding.

"I'm the fortune-teller who lives in the hickory tree," came the voice. "Come no nearer. Say where you are, and I shall tell your fortunes."

"That's good," said Nick. "I'd like my fortune told."

"So should I," said honest Nancy. "Well, I might listen to one myself," said the March Hare, "if it's a good fortune."

"I tell nothing but good fortunes," said the voice. "Each of you make a wish. I can tell you if it will come true."

"Am I going to get a new bicycle on my birthday?" asked Nick.

"Wait until I ask Goofy Goofy," said the voice. "The Goofy Goofy says for you to go to the button-hole tree and back. By that time he will know."

So off went Nick toward the button-hole tree.

"Am I going to get a new gold watch on my birthday?" asked Nancy.

"Wait until I ask Goofy Goofy," came the voice. "Goofy Goofy says for you to go to the button-hole tree and back. By that time he will know by that time."

Away trotted Nancy toward the button-hole tree at the edge of the woods.

"Am I going to have a car on my birthday?" asked the March Hare, looking back.

Goofy Goofy says to go to the bear hill and back," came the answer. "Then he'll know all about it."

Away went the March Hare, looking back.

Nancy and Nick and the Hare arrived at the hickory tree together.

"What does Goofy Goofy say now?" asked Nick. "How about the bicycle?" But there was no answer.

They began to look about them, and there on the other side of the hickory tree was a big hole. And heading away from it in the opposite direction were footprints.

"Reddy Fox," gasped the March Hare. "He was the fortune teller and he fooled us."

They never got him, and Reddy isn't spring-cleaned yet.

MAJOR LEAGUE HURLERS STAR IN FRIDAY GAMES

Both Rooks And Veterans Pitch Clubs To Victories In Tight Loop Struggles

Senators Take Third from Athletics as Stanley Harris Is Banished from Game

Chicago (AP)—Pitchers, old and young, continue to furnish exceptional performances in the major baseball leagues.

Friday, August Johns, of Detroit, a recruit from Port Worth held Cleveland to four hits and won his battle while the veteran, Urban Faber limited the St. Louis Browns to five. The White Sox obtained only five off Robertson, Jannard and Girard, but one of them was a triple by recent Tom Guiley in the first with his bases full, giving Chicago a winning margin.

Grover Alexander of the Chicago Cubs allowed four safeties against Cincinnati but lost the vedette as Lucas likewise was stingy and granted only five. Johnson and Sothoron of the St. Louis Cardinals held the world champions Pirates to four hits and won.

In the American League, Washington and Philadelphia engaged in a heated combat which finally brought banishment to Manager Harris of the Senators in the ninth for objecting to decisions. Washington won 4 to 3, after each squad had registered ten hits. The New York Yankees captured their first series of the year by downing Boston 3 to 2, although out-hit.

Cleveland gathered its three runs off Johns in the first inning with hits by Jamieson and Speaker and two errors by O'Rourke. After that the rookie was invincible while his opponent, Shaute, was wild in the third. In that inning Harry Heilmann cleared the bases with a double while the Tigers were scoring five runs to win the game.

Guiley's triple in the first gave the White Sox a lead that was too much for the Browns with Faber going wild and Chicago won 5 to 1, their third successive victory. The champion Pirates went down again when Sherman filled the bases in the ninth, hit a batsman and allowed Mueller to single. The score was 3 to 2, giving the Cardinals three out of four decision on the series. Lucas of the Reds won his own game against Alexander at Cincinnati with a triple in the third. He scored on a sacrifice fly. Alexander made two of his own club's safeties, but his team mates failed to profit by the example and he lost 2 to 1.

The day saw the Phillies winning streak broke after three straight, the Braves winning 6 to 5.

Steady mound work by Jack Scott gave the Giants another victory and the series against Brooklyn.

PINDLE STILL LEADS NATALIE

Local Cue Star Holds 600-593 Edge With Two-thirds of Big Billiard Match Completed

Harold Pindle, Appleton, state pocket billiard champion, still led P. Natalie, crack national cue loop pro and New York star, at the end of the second days play and the fourth block in the match being played at Hotel Appleton dining room; the scores being 600-593. With the match two-thirds over, Pindle managed to hang on to a 7-point lead because of his fine start on Thursday when he won 150-81 and lost 209-150 for a 300 to 200 lead.

Friday afternoon Natalie had the high run of the match to date, 98 balls and he took a 450-121 win. At night Pindle scored high runs of 37 and 50 and unfinished run of 41 to lead, 500-232. Saturday night will be the last chance to see Natalie and Pindle in action, the game starting at 8:30 sharp. With the match as close as it is and every chance for a big final split by both men which should include much sensational play, a large crowd probably will see the final game.

HELPFUL HINTS TO GOLFING STARS

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS' MAGAZINE, CHICAGO.

Many a time the average golfer faces a pitch shot over a deep sand trap with fear and trembling. Give him a fifteen-foot putt to win a match and he bothers him but slightly because he feels he may make that putt and if he doesn't, well, the chances are against anybody's holding fifteen-foot putts and consequently it fails to upset his poise, or emotions. But that pitch to the well guarded green scares him most to death.

That same pitch shot for the star player is greeted with joy for he knows he can pitch safely to the green and that is the least of his worries. The one foremost thought in his mind is how close can he get his ball to the hole.

Jack Hutchinson, a master hand when it comes to pitching a golf ball to a green, scored a great many three on par four holes of this type when he won his British title simply because this sort of shot was the easiest for him to play. All star players are not nearly as expert as Jack when it comes to playing pitch shots, but nevertheless all golfers among the top rankers are extremely accurate with a mashie or mashie-midick.

9 o'clock—Fox River Paper Co. vs. Citizens Bank.

THURSDAY GAME
8:45—Galpin Hardware vs. Kimberly Club.

Two teams took a jump in the percentage column of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial basketball loop wire via the forfeit route Friday evening and two others fell in the race by the same method although one team which was forced to forfeit a game had surprised the crowd by whipping one of the strongest teams of the loop. This was in the second tilt of the evening when a long-shooting Kimberly club team, reinforced by three members of the crack Kimberly-Clark Athletics beat a crippled Fox River Paper Co. five, 23-17. It was the second surprise win for the K.C. boys as they eat the strong Bankers Tuesday.

Sensational long shots with the tricycles heaving most of the night won for the C. B. Radtke, guard of the Batmen was not in a suit and the remainder of the team displayed ragged ball, not one man playing a good game. The game opened by Williams taking the Foxmen off their feet, running up a score of 8-1 to start with and ending the half 15-8. Williams sank two baskets and forced free tries for eight points. In the final period, Williams was guarded so well that he scored only once but his mates then broke loose when needed to put the game on ice. The Batmen came back strong and played their opponents even in this period, but the big first half lead plus a neat stealing game kept the Kimberly-men ahead.

Neenah Kimberly-Clark squad failed to show up for the first game of the Menasha Printing and Carton Co. crew received a forfeit. Then they played a "scrub" team in a practice tilt. Neenah dropped a notch in the standings by the loss.

In the big game Williams nailed three ringers all sensational shots from past midfloor, and four from all-around play. Bush, Hofkins, and Courchane played good floor games and Verbeten went well at guard. Son Tornow got three ringers and a pair of free tries for the Batmen and Tay Tornow added two baskets.

FORFEIT TWO GAMES

Herb Voeks, league president, and "Pete" Schwager, secretary-treasurer representing the league, stated that both the game in which the Kimberly club had beaten the Bankers on Tuesday and that of Friday night in which they beat the Fox River crew, were declared forfeited to the losing teams. Kimberly played Williams, a man not on their team list, Tuesday evening under protest. They were warned for a week not to use him, sufficient time to replace the man, the league officials said. However, he was in the lineup again Friday night and although the Kimberly crew deserved the game it had to be declared forfeited. Williams was never voted into the league by representatives of the eight teams, the officials said.

Tuesday evening's games, with the Bankers and Fox River fives clashing and the Galpin Hardware meeting the Neenah K.C. crew, will practically decide the race and the 1926 title team, though the final game will be played on Saturday with the leading Galpin playing the Kimberly club five. At present the Batmen are a half-game behind the loop leaders.

ATHLETE DISMISSED BUT NOT EXPELLED

Roger "Rod" Ashman, Blue athletic star, was dismissed from the school rather than expelled as was announced on the sport page of Friday's paper. Lawrence authorities said Saturday. The decision is that an expelled man will not be permitted to enter any other accredited college or school while a dismissed student may be admitted. Lawrence authorities also said that Francis Dilleit, Shawano athletic star, did not leave school because of "regulation" trouble, but that he had left of his own accord, much to the regret of the school board.

EX-STARS ON SAME CLUB

WILBERT ROBINSON, LEFT, AND JOE MCGINNITY. Baseball fans a couple of decades ago recall Wilbert Robinson and Joe McGinnity as famous major league players. Robinson, a catcher, cavorted for Baltimore in those days and McGinnity hurled for the New York Giants. The latter was referred to as "Iron Man" Joe, due to his ability to pitch double-headers. Robinson, as you know, is now president and manager of the Dodgers, while McGinnity is coach of the pitchers.

BLUE TANKSTERS BEAT GREEN BAY

Klein and Cinkoski Lead Un-defeated Blue Fish to 35-24 Win in Bay "Y" Pool

With George Klein of Appleton, a new discovery of Coach Donald Gebhardt, and Cinkoski, 1926 college champion, leading the way, Lawrence college swimming team added another win to their season's record Friday evening, defeating the Green Bay Y. M. C. A. tank team in the Bay pool, 35-24. The Blues beat the Bay team, a short time ago and Friday's contest was the first away from home this year. The Lawrence fish still are undefeated this season, though Fond du Lac "Y" lost by only one point here. Fondy will be met at that city next week.

Klein was discovered last week by Coach Gebhardt in a series of tryouts, and he was his first real trial under fire, taking a first and a second and being a member of the winning relay team. In one race he beat them, a new hope of the Bay team. Cinkoski took two heats for the Blue and swam last on the relay team, coming from behind to beat his man in the last few feet. Practically every member of the Blue squad entered the scoring column.

In the 100-yard free style in which Klein beat them, the new Bay sensation, the local boy squeezed out a win by exactly a hand, officials said. In the relay, Aderholdt, Colvin and Colvin fell behind his opponent and Colvin the third man, made up some of the distance. Cinkoski, the last Blue swimmer, was behind until the final stretch when a whirlwind finish gave him the race in the final stretch against Koch, Green Bay crack swimmer.

Koch and them were the mainstays of the Bay team, taking practically all of its points. Lawrence took four firsts in seven events and neither team made a single clean sweep.

Officials of the meet were Coach Wiley, East Green Bay high school; starter, Parker, and Whitney, Green Bay; and Gebhardt, Lawrence, judge of dives. Parker, scorer, Leers, Green Bay, clerk of the course.

EXPECT CROWD AT CREAM CITY CARD

Legalization of Boxing in Chicago Should Bring Many to See Taylor-Sencio Go

Milwaukee—The biggest crowd that Chicago has sent to a Milwaukee ring event since the night Ad Volgaist and Willie Ritchie boxed 10 rounds here 11 years ago will come from the Windy City for the battle between Bud Taylor and the great Filipino, at the Auditorium, Monday night. The legalization of boxing in Chicago and the class of Frank Mulken's attraction have combined to arouse the interest of the Windy City boys to the breaking point, and at least 1500 will come here to see the mighty mites in action.

Sencio went through a hard drill Thursday and his lightning speed, sliding ability and footwork startled the veteran railbirds who hang around the gym.

Taylor, who is working out in Chicago, reports himself in great shape, and he predicts a victory over the cyclonic jungleman from Luzon. Taylor has whipped most of the stars in the stable of the Churchill-Miller combination and there is a real feud between Taylor and Sencio and the little Filipino promises to even things up in this scrap.

SARMIENTO AND SAMMY RATNER ON BAY FIGHT CARD

Filipino Flash Battles Class of Minneapolis Battlers in Feature Bout April 27

Green Bay—Pete Sarmiento, the Filipino flash, and Sammy Ratner, rated as the best boy of his weight in Minneapolis, will exchange blows in the main bout of the Brown County Boxing club's fight card, which will be staged at the Columbus club on Tuesday evening, April 27. It will be a 10-round affair at 121 pounds.

Sarmiento is one of the best known battlers in the country. He is a fire cracker in the ring, always going at top speed and never giving his opponent a minute's rest.

When the Brown County Boxing club tossed its hat into the fight ring, many of the fans began urging "big stuff" on the promoters. And the club has been arranged to satisfy the fight bugs who want to see the topnotchers.

Good boxers are an expensive luxury and Mr. Sarmiento is no selling player when it comes to financial demands. The former street railway conductor in Manila is getting a big chunk of coin for his appearance here and the club stands to lose a pile of jack unless there is a bumper throng at the ring side.

This is the first "big time" attraction staged in northeastern Wisconsin since Young Stribling fought Joe Quinn at Appleton two years ago. The Sarmiento-Ratner affair is going to be "played up" extensively throughout this part of the state and the boxing club officials are hopeful that hundreds of outsiders will come here to take in the exhibition between the little fellows.

Sarmiento's services are in great demand and the local club had to shift around the dates twice so as to set the stage firmly for the Filipino's appearance here. However, the promoters got definite word that Sarmiento positively will be here and his guarantee money was forwarded by wire.

A good card will support the main bout. Jack Lawrence, the Oshkosh battler, who made a punching bag out of Young Church at the March show, is to be matched with a husky battler in the semi-wind-up. None of the boys around here care about mixing with Lawrence and the promoters are now dickering with a Chicago mitt swinger. The contract will probably be closed within the next 24 hours.

Two other good scraps will complete the fight program.

EAST HIGH GRID MEN IN PRACTICE

Many Vets Out as Wiley Sends 1926 Title Hopes Through Work; Scrimmage Soon

Green Bay—East high footballers had their second week of spring practice this week on the school campus when Coach Wiley sent the Red and White gridgers through a short session. Punting, receiving, punting, forward passing and receiving, and charging were the chief points in the drills.

The squad which was rather small at the start of spring practice last week, has increased considerably since that time. Several promising looking footballers from the undergratulating classes have popped up and it is thought that some of these rookies will come into the lineup next fall.

Keynolds and Payne, two of last year's first stringers, donned the loss for the first time. Keynolds saw red for the first time while Payne was vice at fullback.

Payne worked at both fullback and halfback. Both of these gridgers are expected to earn a regular berth on this year's eleven.

The Hilltopper footballers will be scrimmaging within the next few days. The field has been wet and slippery during the past week, but subsequently, Coach Wiley had to restrict sessions to fundamentals but it is thought that scrimmages will be the next thing in order.

ASSESSORS TOLD HOW FARM LAND VALUES DROPPED

County Valuation Fixers Meet
Here to Hear Address by Tax Commissioner

The United States department of commerce has estimated that there has been a decrease in farm values from $66,316,000,000 in 1920 to $49,516,523,700 in 1925. Judge C. H. Doss of Madison, a member of the Wisconsin Tax Commission, told Outagamie county assessors at their meeting at the courthouse here today.

"The decrease has not been uniform," the judge went on to say. "In the northern and middle Atlantic states there has been an increase in California values have remained stationary, while in the remainder of the country farm values have declined in various amounts up to 11 per cent in the mountain states."

The report did not give the decrease for Wisconsin, but states that heavy dairy industries have suffered less than others.

You and the voters have a right to know what the tax commission and assessors of income have done to meet this situation in the assessment of farm property.

"Until the classification of property was made in the assessment of last year there was no separation in our records of strictly farm property from the other property of the state, and farm values were not kept separate from sales values of other property. We have recently made a study of strictly farm sales and assessments in 14 counties in the south one-half of the state. One county was taken from the district of each assessor of income. A considerable difference was found in the different counties, but all of them taken together gave the following results:

"In 1919, 200,058 acres of strictly farm lands were sold at $21,525,712, an average of $109 per acre. The same lands were assessed at $17,743,242, an average of $78 per acre. This indicates clearly that the assessments of farm property never reached the peak of prices. The assessment of this large volume of lands was $31 per acre below the sales price, and the assessment of 21.5 per cent. The sales of 1919 were sufficient in volume to represent fairly accurately actual values at the beginning of 1920.

"In 1924, 29,280 acres of strictly farm lands were sold at $2,561,739, an average of $87 per acre. These lands were assessed at $2,233,305, an average of $77 per acre. The sales were one-seventh of the volume in acres and one-eighth the value of the 1919 sales. They are much more erratic and hence not so safe a base for determining value," he said.

"It will be of interest to you that the local assessment of towns which is largely made up of farm property, has actually decreased $127,566,151 from 1921 to 1925," he concluded.

COUNCIL TO HOLD THREE MEETINGS

New Body Will Take Charge of City Affairs Tuesday Night

Three council meetings, one by the old body and two by the new, will be held next week. All unfinished business confronting the present council will be completed at its adjourned meeting Tuesday evening, April 20, and it will then adjourn sine die and turn over its affairs to the new body.

The new council will be called to order by Mayor-elect Albert C. Rule immediately after, thus keeping a governing body behind the reins of the city government at all times. The only business to be completed by the new council Tuesday evening will be announcement of committee appointments by Mayor Rule and elections to city offices by the council.

The following night, Wednesday, April 21, being the third Wednesday in the month, the new council will transact regular city business.

Grass Fire
The fire department was called to the west end of W. Franklin-st. at 10:30 Saturday morning to extinguish a grass fire. One truck answered the call.

SPRING IS HERE, SAYS ENGINEER; LET US HOPE SO

City Engineer Robert M. Connelly, and Elmer C. O'Keefe, assistant city engineer, believe spring is here to stay, cold weather to the contrary. Dressed in flannel shirts, khaki trousers and boots, they appeared at the city hall Saturday prepared for their first field work of the year. They were determining the grade for a sidewalk at 321 E. Brewster-st. for Carl Jakobs. The sidewalk will be the first constructed in Appleton in 1926.

RESTAURANT AT CLUB VOTED BY GOLF DIRECTORS

Buttes des Morts Practice
Greens Open to Use of Members

Four committees for the coming golf season of Buttes des Morts club were appointed at a meeting of directors of the club at 6:30 Friday evening in the Blue Room of the Conway hotel. The meeting was presided by a dinner. Eleven directors and Frank Walsh, club professional, were present.

The budget for the year was prepared by the directors and it was decided to start work at once on a restaurant in the clubhouse. The date was set for opening the course because of the changeable weather this year. It was decided that members can use the practice greens until the weather permits the use of the entire course.

Committees appointed at the meeting were:

Greens—D. P. Steinberg, chairman; W. D. Barnard and Seymour Gmeiner.
Finance—John Jacquet, chairman; Joseph Plank, Fred Wozel, Jay Giltzham and H. E. Langraf.
House—C. C. Baker, chairman; Roy Marston and Robert O. Schmidt.

FIRM UNDERTONE TO STOCK MARKET

Sharp Drop in Brokers' Loan
Regarded as Bullish Factor

New York — (AP)—Price movements in Saturday's stock market reflected the usual week end readjustment of speculative accounts but the undertone was firm and most of the active issues pointed upward. While the uncertainties of the business situation are exerting a restraining effect on constructive operations in the market, the federal reserve bank's report of another sharp reduction in brokers' loans, bringing the total blow $2,500,000,000 for the first time this year was regarded as a bullish factor. The early rally in the markets failed to hold, Hudson reacting from a high of 64 1/2 to 61 1/2. The closing was steady. Total sales approximately 425,000 shares.
